LOCAL BRIEFS.

TOLSTOY FOR THE LAST TIME TO-NIGHT.

WELLS, FARGO & Co.'s shipments yesterday were, base bullion, $2,300.

T. R. JONES & Co. received yesterday lead and silver ores, valued at $2,385.11.

THE KUREKA lynchings were brought back from Provo on Wednesday evening.

CLOTHES-LINE THIEVES are foraging in the Sixteenth Ward—B. F. Grant and S. H. Love being the victims.

THOMAS DEVLIN, Daniel Dunne and H. F. Sampson, petit jurors, were yesterday excused by Judge Zane.

McCORMICK & Co. received yesterday, Hanauer bullion, $3,300; Queen of the Hills ore, $1,250. Total, $4,550.

THE FIRST of a series of excursions from the east to California, gotten up by the Union Pacific, will arrive in this city on the 30th, and stop over one day.

Mrs. PIERCE and the two girls from Provo are still in jail. It is not yet known whether any efforts will be made to discover the parents of the wayward females.

THE MERRY, merry maiden and her swain can now daily be seen returning from some of the surrounding canyons, loaded down with the bright leaves of the autumn.

MISS JENNIE HAWLEY and Professor Krouse were present at the morning rehearsal of the Duff Opera Company yesterday. By request, the young lady sang Iolanthe's solo. Mr. Duff, who was greatly pleased with her voice, and complimented her warmly upon her rendition of the song.

F. MILLER, one of the unfortunate nabbed in the Pierce establishment on Saturday evening, underwent trial in the Police Court yesterday. This examination resulted in his discharge. This is the gentleman who "merely went there with a friend, and was playing a game of solitary when the cops came in."

BEULA MOORE and Her Mountain Park Company have evidently concluded to give Salt Lake the go-by. They open in Gunnison, Colorado, today. They at first thought of playing the Opera House, and producing the Danites against Duff's Opera Company, but evidently concluded that discretion was the better part of valor.

HENRY DINWIDDY has purchased of James Dunn, for $1,200, the fifteen years' lease to the ground on which the Coalter & Snellgrove building stood, and has commenced excavating for a two-story brick store. It was thought that Mr. Dinwiddy would secure control of the Dwyer and Pembroke buildings, in which event he would have erected one large brick building, with three uniform stores, but the negotiations failed. Mr. Dunn, in addition to the $1,200, secured his $500 insurance.

THE MARRIAGE ceremony between Captain A. W. Taylor, M. D. of Evanston, and Miss Mary Elizabeth Shurtliff, took place at the residence of Mr. J. B. Glass yesterday at noon. The groomsmen were Lieutenant Dentler and Mr. Hilton, while Miss Nellie Walker and Miss Metta Thompson officiated as bridesmaids. The affair was very quiet, only the immediate friends of the contracting parties being present, and after the wedding dinner the bridal party left for Evanston, Wyoming. The Herald's good wishes accompany them.

THE THIRD Ward Mutual Improvement Association met Wednesday evening, October 13th, for the election of officers, with the following result: President, Thomas Curtis; first counselor, John T. Williams; second counselor, Benjamin H. Eardley; secretary, Franklin J. Hewlett; assistant secretary, James Astle; treasurer and librarian, Urban Picknell; programme committee—B. M. Weiler, Miss Kate Weiler and R. Mickelson; choir leader, F. Bolto; organist, Miss M. E. Eardley. Meetings will be held every Wednesday evening, at 7.30.

THE RAFFLE for the horse, buggy and harness will come off this evening, at the Gymnasium, at 7 o'clock.

THAT SUNDAY FRACAS.

A Disgraceful Affair Slightly Ventilated.

The case against the Hunter boys, who were charged with having a hand in assaulting and beating Ollie Bess during the fracas in the D. & R. G. Saloon Sunday last, was set for trial in the Police Court yesterday. The two defendants, accompanied by several friends and their attorney, held an animated discussion in the hallway, lasting for nearly an hour, at the end of which time they came into court. Both entered a plea of guilty to battery on Bess, and at their own request were allowed to make a statement of the affair.

The Hunter said that they were in Hegarty's Saloon, near the D. & R. G. when his brother became involved in a windy war with Bess. He jumped in to attempt to separate them, when there was a cunch and a scramble, during which Bess received the injuries that have adorned his person since that time.

Ollie Bess, the one who had gotten out the complaint, was then sworn. He said that there were a number of people in the saloon when the trouble occurred. It started over a jangle about doing a trick with a chair. They were all trying to lift a chair, like Abe and several others. A man named Davis was the only one who could lift it, and Bess made a remark to that effect, when like Hunter jumped him, biting and scratching, during which he came near gouging an eye out, and biting a thumb off. It was evident that Bess was a very unwilling witness, and that he did not desire to prosecute the Hunters, if it could possibly be helped.

He required considerable questioning to draw any of the facts of the case out of him. He supposed it was like who inflicted the injuries, but he did not know—that was what the boys had told him.

The attorney for the defense asked that the sentence be made as light as possible.

Moyle made a few remarks, and at the conclusion the Judge said that the limit of punishment allowed in cases of battery was a fine of $100, or imprisonment for 100 days. The facts before the Court showed that the Hunter did most of the battering. It was unfortunate that such a case should exist; that a crowd of young men should gather at a saloon on the Sabbath day, and create such a disturbance as had been shown to have occurred. It seemed to him that a man who would resort to hitting as a means of defense was very much degraded. It was an offense that ordinarily should call for the severest punishment that the law could inflict, but, under the circumstances, and considering the fact that the complaining witness himself did not seem disposed to prosecute, a fine of $50 would be imposed on the Hunter and $25 on the Bess, or in default of payment, the same number of days on the public works.

The sentence seemed to crush all the life out of the defendants—like particularly, who seemed to be thoroughly overwhelmed. He wanted the fine reduced, but was referred to the Mayor as the only person who had any power to act in the matter, and at last accounts he had raised the money and had been liberated.

It was very evident at the examination yesterday that there is considerably more behind the fracas than was brought into view yesterday, and there are those who are not slow to assert that had a full investigation been made, Bess would have been found to be as deep in the trouble as either of the others. Be this as it may, however, the whole affair is deserving of unlimited censure, and cannot but reflect seriously upon all concerned.

THE FARMER INQUEST.

The Investigation to Be Concluded To-day.

The inquest over the remains of the body found on the lake shore, began at Tooele yesterday. Several witnesses from this city were present, and gave their testimony in the matter. No decision was reached, however, the jurors wishing to examine the dentist who, it is alleged, filled several teeth for Farmer some time before his sudden and strange disappearance. Some of the teeth were brought to the city yesterday afternoon, and taken to the office of Chapman & Whytock, and it is said that while the fillings greatly resemble those put in by the firm named, the teeth referred to come from the opposite jaw to that one shown on the diagram at the dentist's office. Mr. James Whytock, who did the work, however, was expected in the city last evening, and either he or his partner, Mr. Chapman, and one or two other witnesses will be taken out to-day, when, it is thought, the evidence will be concluded and a verdict returned. Louis Hyams, one of those who went out yesterday to examine the remains, says he is more than ever convinced that they are those of J. D. Farmer. The result of the inquest will probably be known in time for publication in tomorrow's issue of THE HERALD.

THE DAMAGES SUIT.

The Motion For a Non-Suit Overruled by Judge Zane.

The suit for $40,000 damages of Lunnon vs. Conklin again occupied the day before Judge Zane yesterday. The plaintiffs called Isaac Hunter, James Speirs, Jacob Flohm, and Thomas Evans as witnesses and then closed their case. The defense then moved for a non-suit on the ground that there was a lack of evidence to make a case. This motion was argued to considerable length, and was finally overruled by Judge Zane, who remarked incidentally that he would prefer to have the jury pass upon the question of negligence on the part of the child's parents, or negligence on the part of the sampling works' employees; he also remarked that even if negligence on the part of the parents in allowing a child under the age of accountability to stray from their care—the child still had a right of action if negligence on the part of those moving the cars could be shown. Whether this state of facts had been established by the evidence he would not venture an opinion.

Mr. Varian opened the case for the defense by stating that they expected to prove that the people about the car had exercised all due care and precaution, that the child had gotten under the trucks itself and was invisible to them who were working at the time. The defense were calling their witnesses when the hour of adjournment arrived.

THE TRANSFER MADE.

The Utah Central Ogden Force Now Under the Union Pacific.

All the Utah Central force at Ogden was yesterday transferred to the Union Pacific, the freight men, yard hands, agent, operator and the Deseret Telegraph wire being now under the Union Pacific Agent Hulain's hands. Mr. John Reeve, who has so long held the place of Utah Central agent at Ogden, will remain at present in the new office. Mr. Cope says the entire force will be kept as far as practicable, and when the weeding out commences, which will of course, be inevitable in time—the preference will be given to the oldest and most capable hands. The old Utah Central quarters were in the way of the workmen on the new Union Pacific depot, and will be demolished at once.

LOGAN LINES.

CHAS. FAANK was arrested last evening on the going charge. He pleaded guilty and was bound over in $1,000 bonds. Joel Ricks, Jr., Superintendent of the United Order Manufacturing and Building Company, met the same fate. He appeared this morning and asked for a discharge. Commissioner Goodwin remarked that "if Mr. Ricks will produce the woman charged in the complaint and prove to the court that he is innocent, he will be discharged; otherwise the court feels satisfied in his own mind that there is cause sufficient to hold him." Messrs. Hammond & Maughan, attorneys for the defendant, asked for an examination, which after much hesitancy was granted by His Honor, and Monday, at 10 o'clock, was set for trial.

OUR SEVERE rain storm is over, and has left the mountains crowned with snow.

LOGAN, October 14th.

Emma DeMar's Case Goes Over.

Emma DeMar and two of the inmates of her place, came into the Police Court yesterday afternoon, and arranged themselves on the anxious seat. Mr. Lewis appeared for Miss DeMar, and stated that she was ready for trial. Moyle, however, said it had been understood that she would come in at that hour and plead guilty. For that reason, no witnesses had been summoned on the part of the prosecution, and he would like to have the case go over until to-day. Mr. Lewis had no objection. Pleas of not guilty were entered in all these cases. The defendants were ordered to appear at 2 o'clock to-day, and the half-dozen spectators who had assembled to see the "fun" glided gracefully away.

THE FULL PENALTY.

James I. Steele Gets One Year and $600.

James I. Steele, of Tooele County, came before Judge Zane to receive sentence. Both Mr. Moyle and Mr. Varian stated to the Court that Mr. Steele had testified against himself, and had given the officers no trouble. The following ensued:

Court—What means have you to pay a fine?

Mr. STEELE—I have no means. I transferred all my property six months ago.

Court—To whom did you transfer it?

Mr. STEELE—To my children who are under age.

Court—What was it worth?

Mr. STEELE—Well, altogether, it was worth probably $1,000. That was my homestead.

Court—Have you any personal property?

Mr. STEELE—I have some farming machinery.

Court—What is your intention as to the future? Will you obey the law?

Mr. STEELE—I prefer to be placed under no obligation as to the future.

Court—I do not ask about your belief. I ask you what is your intention as to your acts?

Mr. STEELE—I prefer not to make any statement in reference to that.

Court—Do you intend to violate the law or obey it?

Mr. STEELE—I do not intend to violate any law. But I will not violate my conscience and will not make a promise that would compel me to.

Court—There is considerable trouble in arresting, indicting and trying men for this offense. The law must be enforced and kept. Will you obey it? That is a simple question.

Mr. STEELE—I have told you three times that I prefer to place myself under no obligations as to my future conduct. What more can I say to be understood?

Court (severely)—Well, if you will not obey the law you will be sentenced to imprisonment for six months on each count, and on each day a fine of $300 and costs of prosecution. That is, as there are two counts, you will be imprisoned for one year and pay a fine of $600 and the costs of prosecution, and stand committed until the fine and costs are paid.

Mr. STEELE remained in the Marshal's office the greater part of the day, a deputy accompanying him to a friend's dinner. He went to the Penitentiary last evening.

Trumbo-White.

A happy event which has long been anticipated by Salt Lake people, transpired in San Francisco on Thursday, when Mr. Isaac Trumbo and Miss Emma White, of this city, were united in marriage, the ceremony being performed by the Right Rev. Bishop Kip. The wires between Salt Lake and the Bay City carried many messages of congratulation, and if the good wishes that were sent will avail, the future will bring to Mr. and Mrs. Trumbo nothing but happiness. This city claims them both, for it was here that their childhood days were passed, and here are their relatives, companions and friends. The bride is the daughter of Dr. I. White, and is a most charming lady, and her graces could not be more highly prized than by him to whom she has given her hand and pure young heart. Mr. Trumbo is a young man who has early displayed in marked degree the possession of those sterling qualities of head and heart—industry, enterprise and integrity—which are so much admired in this world, and which are so essential to successful and honorable lives.

THE HERALD unites with the many friends of the young people in wishing them joy and prosperity through life. For the present Mr. and Mrs. Trumbo will reside in San Francisco, where Mr. Trumbo's business is largely centered.

The Ross Soap of the World.

The Colorado Soap Company of Denver, have branched out into the largest soap concern of the entire West, and are placing their goods all over the country. They have just enlarged their factory so that they now have an entire block in Denver. It has seven huge vats capable of turning out 1,250,000 pounds per month, and the company says they are ready to compete successfully with any maker in the country. Mr. T. B. Wilmet, the Western Agent, says he is much pleased with his success in Utah, Montana and Idaho, which shows how rapidly popular the Colorado Soap Company's goods are becoming. Mr. Wilmet has made Salt Lake City the distributing point for this region. Special and handsome brands have been got up for the Utah trade. The Colorado Soap Company are the sole manufacturers of the celebrated GESSERITE SOAP. When your agent calls on you, take a sample, try it and be convinced.

AMUSEMENTS.

A TRIP TO AFRICA—Last night was the great one of the Duff management; every seat in the house had been sold out before noon, and three or four solid phalanxes of ladies and gentlemen stood up all night behind the last row, lending a dark background effect to a very brilliant dress circle; the previous nights in money results had gone $700 or $800; last evening the receipts could not have been far from $1,100 or $1,200. A Trip to Africa, as Duff's magnificent company presents it, is a warm vision of Oriental wealth, profuseness and splendor; gazing upon the minarets and towers, the kiosks, the flowing robes, the lithe Arabs, the sinuous figures of the damsels with their jars, the yellow desert moon, the drooping banyans—it would not be difficult to grow oblivious of all surroundings, and to fancy that by some magic here was one of the Arabian Nights materialized, and set up before us. In scenery and costuming A Trip to Africa transcends any other ever staged in this city—even the well remembered magnificence of Melville's Royal Middy pales before it. The scene in the second act, representing the moon looking down upon the winding Nile, and later on the overflow of that stream, and the inundation of the lands—was a marvel of the painter's art; the costumes of chorists and principals were the acme of taste in gorgeously, the Turkish dresses of Russell, Jarbeau and Mr. Hilliard particularly shining. When we had allied to all this eastern sumptuousness a wealth of music in Von Suppe's brightest, sweetest vein—the result may be imagined. The opera is as full of sparkling waltz movements as if Strauss himself had touched it—and here and there are charming reminiscences of the charming Boiccado. With Suppe it is always a matter of "stealing to touch the loftiest theme" in comic opera, and listening to the grand strains of one of his finales, one can not help the reflection that this composer should choose some higher subject than the amours of the writer of the Decameron, or the adventures of an erratic imitator of Stanley. The mesalliance between Suppe and his librettist was more than ever evident last evening, when a very silly and unbecomingly warty dialogue were set to the most bewitching of music. The individual cleverness of the principals, the innate funniness of Ryley, and the humor he injects into his part alone, lifted the pall of the commonplace, which otherwise would have settled upon the work.

Nine-tenths of an audience, however, when it can hear such tollings as Lillian Russell's that vision of bewildering loveliness as she presented, witness the convulsions of Ryley, behold the graceful chic of Jarbeau, listen to Hilliard's silver tones, and have their ears ravished with the volume of tuneful harmony that Duff's chorus sends forth—flung analysis to the four winds and settle down to the supreme enjoyment of the moment. The applause and enthusiasm of the night were unbounded; there was but little solo work in the opera, most of its beauties being concerted, but a charming duet between Lillian Russell and Mr. Hilliard, "The Rose and the Thorn," and later on another duo introduced for the same people, were received with uproarious approval and both redemanded; Russell sang like a bird—her voice ought not to be taken her outside the confines of comic opera; the finish with which she does Suppe's trying music shows that there is little in the legitimate beyond her powers; Verona Jarbeau made a tremendous hit in her French song, which she did as Alinee herself could hardly do it; her serenade of "In the stillness," shows that she has the keenest sense of opera bouffe humor. Mr. Hilliard did the best work he has done vocally and dramatically; he shared Miss Russell's calls. Mr. Dungan, in a sort of Fresh, the American part, showed that he is an actor in a certain line, of strong talent; by far the best thing he has done was his diadillo. Miss Seguin was seen in a part which only afforded a glimpse of her powers, but she of course made the most of it. Mr. Wessman's Jew was a clever performance; as were Mr. Nash's hotel keeper, and Miss Lucette's chaperone. Ryley was all and entirely himself; more could not be said.

Iolanthe will be repeated to-night. Such has been the success of the engagement and such is the confidence of Mr. Duff and the management that it can be prolonged that arrangements have been made for two extra performances, a Mikado matinee to-morrow and a repetition of A Trip to Africa to-morrow night. A special train will leave with the company immediately after the evening performance, to enable them to reach Denver in time to open Monday night.

Over Many a League

Spreads the miasma, or poisonous vapor, that begets malarial and typhus fever. Wherever there is stagnant water in which vegetation, or refuse of any kind decays, there, as surely as the sun rises, are generated the seeds of fever and ague, dumb ague, and other endemic maladies of the tropics. For the effects of this envenomed air, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters furnishes an antidote, and prevents both the contraction and recurrence of such malady. Even along the line of excavation for the Lesseps Panama Canal, where malarial diseases are not only virulent, but deadly, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has demonstrated its incomparable protective qualities. Not only for febrile complaints, but also for disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, for rheumatism and inactivity of the kidneys and bladder, it is very effective. It counteracts the effects of fatigue, damp and exposure.

AFTER THE SCALPERS.

A Warning to the Public Concerning Cheap Tickets.

The following warning posted up in various quarters of town, has recently attracted considerable attention:

WARNING!

The public are respectfully notified that many ticket brokers and other unauthorized persons are offering for sale the return portion of Grand Army of Order, Salt Lake, etc., to eastern points, and unused portions of west-bound tickets to the Pacific Coast, and that such tickets are not good for passage, except when presented by the original purchasers thereof.

As many such tickets have been presented for passage by persons other than the original purchasers, and as the return portion of Grand Army of Order, Salt Lake, etc., to eastern points, and unused portions of west-bound tickets to the Pacific Coast, and that such tickets are not good for passage, except when presented by the original purchasers thereof.

Conductors on all lines are furnished with full information, and will collect full local fare from passengers other than the original purchasers who may present such tickets for passage.
